Adapting to Change in the Scandinavian Job Market, Schneider Electric (English)

We will show you how working in a Scandinavian-oriented role looks like from the perspective of two different departments – HR and Customer Care. We understand that you might worry about working conditions during the pandemic, that it might be harder than before, and that you might be unsure what to expect from working somewhere between Scandinavian and Polish work culture. During this session we will tell you all about this and explain how things work. We will focus on three issues: how the pandemic has affected the job market, how we deal with and manage diversity in an international company, and how we find Scandinavian values in our daily work.

Host: Marlena Kulasińska

Host: Zuzanna Gil

We both graduated with Master's degrees from SWPS University in 2017. Since then we have been working in one team at Schneider Electric. Over time, we both have moved on to different roles in the organization, including supervisory positions. Today, we are back at SWPS University to share with you our experience of working in an international corporation, to tell you how university education can be applied at work, and how the pandemic has affected the way we work now.

Discover Denmark (English)

Join our webinar to discover Denmark and the way we work. We will show you the main differences between the Polish and Danish work culture. This event does not have a fully built agenda, because we want you to be an active participant of this session! So firstly, if you have any questions about Denmark, but there is no one you can address them to, just email us at urszula.osipuk@philips.com, and we will try to include this subject in the presentation – deadline for submitting questions is Monday, November 25). Secondly, we do not want to have just a simple Q&A session, but a real debate with you, so charge your batteries and do not hesitate to unmute yourself. We are so looking forward to meeting with you!

"Å fortelle nordmenn om Polen" – spotkanie z korespondentką Ingrid Brekke / meeting with a writer Ingrid Brekke (in Norwegian)

Hvordan er det å skrive om Polen i Norge? Hvilket bildet av Polen har nordmenn? Hva gjør man for å formidle nyheter, politikk og historie for et bredt publikum i et annet land? Journalisten Ingrid Brekke skriver regelmessig om Polen i Norges største dagsavis Aftenposten, og i 2019 kom det ut hennes nye reportasjebok "Polen: Aske og diamanter". I en samtale med Natalia Mazur-Rodak fra den skandinaviske avdelingen på Universitetet SWPS forteller hun om sitt arbeid og opplevelsene fra Polen. Møtet skal avsluttes med en spørsmålsrunde.

Spotkanie odbędzie się w języku norweskim.

16.00–17.30

Cross-Cultural Communication (English)

Would you like to understand how to communicate with people from different cultures? Why is it important for good business relations to understand cultural differences? What are cultural differences?

During the Cross-Cultural Communication workshop offered by Accenture, you will learn about effective business communication and building cross-cultural relationships, which will help you to work in multicultural teams. Our trainer, Ilona Kiss, will answer the above-noted questions and share her experience gained during her career in Accenture.
